

Dear Parents

As we come to the end of our first week back I have already started to reflect on this terms value of 'Truth'.

You often hear people say things like, "it is only a little lie, it is not a real lie or it is a good lie." I certainly know myself of many lies I told my own children. Lies that many of us still tell our children that we won't mention here!

So why is truth so important if telling lies is ok? For many people the lies above that I have mentioned are just as bad as a lie that is going to hurt someone. I took the stance that these were lies that wouldn't hurt anyone and it would be more hurtful if the truth were known at a certain age. We are all different and will respond to this differently.

It is definitely worth pondering and just spending sometime reflecting on what truth means to you. One of the things I often say to the child is I can deal with the truth but I cannot deal with a lie.

Food for thought that we can explore in the coming weeks!

Have a great weekend

What is YouTube?

We don't really need to explain this one: unless you've been living on Mars for the past 15 years, you'll already know about YouTube.

But do you use it as much as your child?

Probably not – because children and young people just love it. Some just like watching the clips – anything from Taylor Swift performances to cute cat videos to YouTubers such as football gaming star KSI – while others make their own and post them for others to watch and comment on.

What do parents need to know about YouTube?

YouTube has simple parental controls to restrict access to adult content, strict community rules about posts and an easy process to report illegal, harmful or upsetting content. But there is still a chance your child will come across content you wouldn't want them to, including religious and extremist propaganda.

That's why it's important to encourage them to think critically about anything they see on the platform. The content may not be true or have come from a verifiable source.

To post, you need to be 13 years old and open an account but you can watch content at any age. For children under 13, there is an app, YouTube Kids, with content specially curated for a younger age group

Update regarding COVID-19

With COVID restrictions being lifted we would still like to remind you of the following advice from UKHSA.

Children and young people with COVID-19 should not attend their education setting while they are infectious. They should take an LFD test from 5 days after their symptoms started (or the day their test was taken if they did not have symptoms) followed by another one the next day. If both these tests results are negative, they should return to their educational setting if they normally attend one, as long as they feel well enough to do so and do not have a temperature.
